

Black and White: Billionaire Baby Bundle (Interracial BWWM Pregnancy Romance)

5 Racy Stories - 1 Low Price Unwanted by the White Billionaire Donna Hearst was carrying a baby nobody wanted. David Castle had promised her one hundred thousand dollars to be a surrogate mother for him and his wife. Donna had agreed, desperate for the money to cover her debts while she cared for her ailing mother. Then everything fell apart when Mrs. Castle discovered she was pregnant; they suddenly wanted nothing to do with the child Donna carried. Now, Donna has one last appointment with Dr. Bryant - the handsome young doctor the Castles had hired for her. Over the months, she'd come to think of him as more of a friend than a doctor. Besides her mother, she knew few people in the area and Bryant was the only one who seemed to be looking out for her. She came to say goodbye, but he might not be willing to let her go... Take Me In Doniesha Trevors is all alone. Six months pregnant, she just came home to find her boyfriend balls-deep in some skinny white bitch. Complications with the pregnancy required extensive leave from work, and they'd had to let her go. Without a job, she had no insurance and quickly burned through her savings. The only person she felt she could ask for help was an old friend from high school, but they'd hardly spoken in years. Jake was a scrawny, little, white boy with a quick wit and a penchant for trouble. He'd gone off to join the marines, and she'd hardly spoken to him since. From his letters, she knew that he had saved up all the money he'd made while deployed and invested it wisely. He was now running his own company, and had become a self made billionaire. Doniesha hated to ask for help, but knew she had no other options. She had called Jake and asked to meet with him, now she was on a bus to the airport. She had spent the last of her savings on a plane ticket, and she desperately hoped Jake wouldn't turn her away. She was willing to do whatever it took to convince him to let her stay. One in a Billion Dr. James Kent had it all, and lost the only thing that mattered - his wife and unborn child. They were victims of a rare genetic incompatibility that he discovered too late. He had passed the gene onto his baby, a gene that causes severe illness unless the child received two copies. His wife had refused to give up on their child, even after she became ill as the infant in her womb weakened. In the end, he lost them both. After years of mourning, he had begun secretly searching for a woman who could carry his child. She needed to possess the same rare gene as him, and the odds were stacked against him. Now he's finally found her. Jaynie Preston was a waitress with big dreams, always held back by her meager funds. She had gone to school to be a writer, against her parents' advice, and now she was a waitress. She had tried not to think much about children - deep down, she knew she wanted a family, but she'd never been in a relationship strong enough for that to be a possibility and she knew she couldn't support a family on her small salary. Then she had met Dr. Kent and everything changed... Bundle of Trouble It isn't yours. She had hoped she would never have to tell him. Janice had been something of a wild child when they had met, but she fell hard for David and had tried to change. Every man she had been with before him had treated her like shit, and she believed that was all she deserved. Then she met David. He had been quiet, almost shy at first, but something about her had drawn him out of his shell. There was a glimmer in his eyes when he looked at her, and for the first time in her life she felt like she might be something special. He cared for her in ways no one ever had, but he couldn't quite reign in her wild side. Now one big mistake threatened everything; they were engaged to be married, and she was carrying another man's child. Could David ever love her again? Also contains Mixed Ble
