

Love Is Patient (Red Rose County Novellas Book 1)

Clare is the nicest person in Lancashire. When someone in her small town has a problem, they ask Clare to help. She volunteers at a local community centre, and shes a single mother to a teenage daughter with special needs. She has learned to put herself second and thats fineisnt it? Mark is a young businessman, recently returned from London, full of ideas to bring employment to the area. He has something to prove, and hes convinced hes right - even when his plans bring conflict to the very town hes trying to help. They both need to lose whats important to them - to really understand whats truly important in life. But can Clare separate being nice from being a pushover and can Mark live up to his own ideals - not his fathers? This is a novella of 25,000 words - just under half the length of a regular novel, written to be a quick and satisfying read. It has Christian themes of faith, hope and love. It is part one of the Red Rose County series, which can be read in any order; they are all standalone novels with complete endings, though I have numbered them for those who like chronology! About Red Rose County: Red Rose County - Lancashire, England is the setting for a series of inspirational, clean romances. Each is a standalone novella with a warm, hopeful ending. These sweet tales can be read in any order; gentle, nostalgic and uplifting, Red Rose County is a place youll want to return to, again and again.
